

Why Understanding DNA Function Opens the Door to Creating ~

By Toni Elizabeth Sar'h Petrinovich

You might be asking yourself why you would want to spend time watching videos, reading papers, looking at articles and generally using the quality of your spare moments exercising your brain/mind instead of your body. I would like to give you the reasons here.

Without a doubt, you have been exposed to the idea that there is a law within the universe that allows you to attract to you that which you desire to have or experience. This law is being called the Law of Attraction and it is getting an enormous push through the spiritual, New Age, lightworker communities. At its core, it is a basic tenet of theoretical physics and quantum physics. Putting it into action has given an enormous monetary boost to many of the current pundits touting it as the "end all and be all" of abundance and success in life. Yet, the most inherent properties of the workings of this law are not being addressed. This is where your DNA comes into play. Read on . . .

The physical DNA in your body creates the structure you use as your physical vehicle. The coding DNA, the 10% that carries the language for protein synthesis (creation), houses the building blocks of each part of your body. The other 90% has a variety of uses, most of which are not understood. Science calls the 90% "junk DNA" due to lack of comprehension regarding its use. We will delve more deeply into "junk (or potential) DNA" later. Right now, let's follow your coding DNA thread.

When the coding DNA wants to replicate itself, it makes a copy of itself (called "transcription"). To do so, it follows the instructions in its blueprint. So, where does the blueprint come from? How does it know what needs to happen next? While some readers may answer those questions with a reference to an all-knowing Creator, I would remind you that you are co-creator with the God of your personal belief system. Your response to life tells your DNA what you want it to do. You might call this your "response – ability".

Recent research by the Russian Gariaev Group points to the "non-locality" of the data the DNA requires in continuing its mission. "Non-locality" is defined as "a direct influence of one object on another distant object . . . without the object being in the immediate surroundings." In other words, your DNA is reliant upon knowing what is happening in the entire body before it responds to a portion of the body by creating another, or more, protein(s). Within this non-local space, all information is treated as a hologram, each piece represents the whole. Affecting one portion of the hologram affects all portions of the hologram.

The blueprint of the DNA is made up of energy waves. All of these waves affect all of you because they are you. The DNA responds to the information in the energy wave and creates accordingly. While you may believe that the underlying data stream making up your personal DNA was created by your mother and your father (physically, you are correct), remember that your DNA is a holographic representation of their combined DNA that was influenced by their lives and the choices therein. They passed it on to you, yet you are the one who tells your own DNA how to function. It is a continuing process and you are in control of it.

So, this is where the Law of Attraction comes in ~ the energy wave that is you (and by that I mean "all of you" – your thoughts, feelings, words, actions, emotions, etc.) not only tells your DNA how to "transcribe" itself, it also tells the world what you are, what you want, how you think and how you express. It attracts to you a response to the energy emitted by the signature within your DNA in the same way the DNA responds to the energetic information you send to it. Hence, you cannot fool the Universe's response to your use of attraction. What you emit attracts what you experience . . . every time.

This summation is the basis for the four part video series entitled "DNA Is The Secret". It is integral to your being in every dimension in which you exist ~ physically, emotionally, mentally and physically. You are the creator. You are the director. You are the Source of the instructions received by your DNA and the Source of the events you request from the Universe at large.