

How Humans Access the Realm of Possibility

By Toni Petrinovich

Your awareness is colored by what you have experienced in your past and often what you hope for in your future. This is your perception and it controls your behavior. Perceptions are the result of your beliefs. Beliefs cause you to act or react depending upon what you believe is expected of you by your environment.

Your environment (home, work, play, church, relationship, etc.) and perception create your identity. Your identity is the receiver of the energy field within the environment. You, as your identity, change because of your environment. In one sense, you are the environment. If you wish to change your environment, you can do so by changing your identity because, remember, they are reciprocal. Both are electromagnetic frequencies.

Your feelings create your thoughts and your thoughts create the reality that is your personal field, your environment. The energy field interacts with you consciously and subconsciously creating the feelings that create the thoughts that create the environment.

Think about a radio receiver or any other receiver, for that matter, say your cell phone – it has to be receptive to the frequency that is being sent out by the cell tower and when the two are of the same frequency, it picks up the signal and sends one out as well. This is a very simplistic example, yet it works for the moment to assist you in understanding yourself as a standing wave at a basic level. A standing wave transmits and receives simultaneously. Your transmission and reception create your energy field, are fed by it and create your environment through your perception.

Your DNA lives within the environment of you. Every thought you think, every feeling you have, every action you take creates a signal within your vibrational frequency. You are continuously creating the environment from which your DNA receives its information. On a very micro level, this is the Law of Attraction in action within your body.

This signal comes from the environment or consciousness – your consciousness through your feelings, thoughts and emotion. You are constantly downloading information from the environment around you creating those feelings, thoughts and emotions. Your DNA depends upon the environment in which it lives (you) to instruct its use. In essence, it is a feedback loop between you and the environment in which you live. The frequency that you create within you from the information in the environment informs the environment and it feeds more of the same to you.

There are two types of DNA: coding and non-coding. Coding DNA is the DNA you are used to thinking about biologically. Non-coding DNA (often referred to as “junk” DNA by science since they don’t know what it does) does not code for species development and repair. We like to refer to “junk” DNA as potential DNA because nature does not waste any resource within itself. Some research has proven that potential DNA has the ability to mend broken coding DNA spontaneously. Most of the advanced research being conducted in the field of potential DNA is being performed in Russia.

Science knows very little about the function of potential DNA outside of its ability to tell coding DNA when to "turn on and off". In other words, the non-coding DNA acts as a regulator of the coding DNA. The concept that a major part of DNA is "junk" ignores the fact that biological organisms adhere to strict optimal energy expenditure. Carrying enormous amounts of unnecessary molecules is in conflict with the fundamental energy saving protocol of biological organisms. Some scientists surmise that the process of evolution could lie within the potential DNA allowing for increased diversity within a species.

Russian investigation has shown that potential DNA is able to regulate trans-dimensional, non-local streams of information by magnetizing it to itself and then forwarding it to your consciousness. It is bio-acoustic and bio-electric translating sound into light and light into sound. This is called "hyper-communication".

At a sub-atomic level, the "information" contained within the connecting chromosomes of the DNA within the separate cells of an organism comprise a holistic continuum producing radiations. You could call this "a continuous whole that spreads out". The Gariaev Group in Moscow has shown experimentally that these radiations are "laser radiations" (coherent energy waves) that are non-local – they affect other organisms at a distance.

The DNA’s chromosomes do this by changing the charge of their own photons (their elementary particles) into a broadband radio wave that enables radio-frequency communication. Broadband radio waves are a wide band of electromagnetic waves that travel in space commonly used for communication.

Through their experiments, these Russian scientists have proven that the DNA through its chromosomes is capable of altering its natural laser (coherent) radiation into a wavelength that is longer than visible light (radio wave) to send information that affects organisms at a distance. It is done instantaneously, non-locally and holographically (each point contains light from the whole).

In this way, an organism's cells "know" about each other instantaneously. The transmission of information within an entire complex organism (like you) is so fast that it cannot be explained by the speed of light. It is happening instantaneously within the entire body constantly. Holographic non-locality provides coherent information to the body maintaining continuation of life in natural order.

Whenever you hear information relating to laser light, laser radiation, bio-computers, it is based upon the coherency of those tools, i.e. the troughs and crests of the wave are equal. The DNA molecule's intracellular light is coherent.

Transmitting information and energy from the subtle realm to the physical realm uses coherent wave forms. Coherency allows easy transmission of information and energy from one field to the other. While you may have read about and even believe in the mind/body connection, you most likely have not realized how deeply this interaction goes, how it involves every aspect of your being; how entangled you are with all of the information and energy in your environment and how non-locally you are affected by it.

Within the results of the Russian experiments lies the impression of a wormhole. Wormholes are microscopic equivalents of the so-called Einstein-Rosen bridges (a shortcut through space/time) surrounding black holes. Normally, these bridges are unstable tunnel connections between entirely different areas of the omni-verse. Their lifespan is very short. Under the proper conditions, the wormhole's stability increases. Communication travels through these conduits outside of time and space (non-local).

DNA attracts the information traveling through the wormholes. Once it has resonated with the information, the consciousness of the individual becomes aware of it. This is referred to as hyper-communication. This type of "hearing" or "knowing" is most easily achieved in a state of relaxation leading to entrained coherency (the whole body is vibrating at a coherent rate).

DNA, as a quantum hologram, is capable of encoding and decoding holographic communication and information. This information comes from the infinite, resides within the infinite and continues into the infinite. It is this realm of information that we refer to as the “realm of all possibility”.

It also explains the awareness within each human being of his or her message which is encoded within every human's DNA awaiting the coherent moment when it may come forth.